"A most engaging and admirable work, comsiled after a very surcular idea, by the tasteful, and talented Mr. Gilman. Of South Caroline. It is a playfully contrived series of chance answers to questions, suitable for amusement round an evening table. We close our long extracts with a renewed expression of our admiration at the taste of the compiler, and the ingrantly whe which it was prignally contrived. The getting up of the book should not be forgotten. It is in the stape of fannual, and the best of citt books."

ATTRACTIONS UNPRECEDENTED

WE DID NOT WISH, as we have the credit of doing, to appear kind, gentlemanly or anniable, in our Notice first published on Monday inst; but merely wished to state facts to prevent mistakes. Nor did we wish, or expect to avoid a reply; nor do we now wish it. We have never felt in any way annoyed, either by "the similarity of names" or by the "professional labors "of any one; but by unprofessional labors and
